6 CLE CREDITS
including ethics

Our opening session for this year's Animal Law Conference will focus on the much talked-about "New Dog Law" in Pennsylvania, one of Governor Rendell's initiatives. Moderated by Jessie L. Smith, Special Deputy Secretary for Dog Law Enforcement at the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, a panel of individuals who were involved in the drafting and passage of Act 119 of 2008 will discuss the process, the impact of the law, the challenges in reaching compromise to get the needed votes and the strengths and weaknesses of the new law. As with most legislation, there are those who say it does not do enough, those who believe it has gone too far, and those who feel that it was an achievement to pass the law at all. This will be a dynamic session and your comments and questions are invited.
